This report helps you:

- See what has been reported toward Employee Retention Credit or FFCRA per employee.
- Identify employees who have not reached the limits for Employee Retention Credit or FFCRA.
- Identify additional opportunities to take advantage of Employee Retention Credit when used in conjunction with your PPP Forgiveness Data 2021 Report.

The Paychex COVID-19 Wages Data report (Report) includes the gross wages and the wages you have designated as either Families First Coronavirus Response Act (FFCRA) or Employee Retention Credit (ERC) Wages or health contributions for all active and terminated employees for check dates that processed during the time period you selected for the company's listed. The Report can be used to assist you in determining whether wages can be used to apply for specific credits. If we prepare or prepare and file a payroll tax return during a quarter with designated ERC or FFCRA wages, the return will reflect those wages in the payroll tax return unless you give us different instructions. We will apply the ERC and FFCRA based on the CARES Act as amended, related guidance as of the date listed below, and any direction we receive from you. You are solely responsible for reviewing and certifying the correctness of the information contained in the Report and your payroll tax returns. The Report is not tax advice and you are solely responsible for determining whether wages qualify for the FFCRA or ERC credit. If you want to claim tax credits, we will prepare and/or amend and/or file your payroll tax returns pursuant to your service agreement with us, subject to its terms and conditions. Additional fees may apply. The information in our materials or any discussions with your concerning the ERC or FFCRA or amending your tax returns should not be considered legal, accounting, investment, or fiduciary advice. If you require legal or accounting advice or need other professional assistance, you should always consult your professional advisor to discuss your particular facts and circumstances.

Rev. 03/01/2021

1. Total Compensation

This includes pay codes on an employee's check that are earnings, add to net pay, or are included for tax purposes.

2. FFCRA Expenses

This includes wages or healthcare costs entered in payroll for claiming the FFCRA tax credit.

3. ERC Expenses

This includes wage amounts or healthcare costs entered in payroll for claiming the Employee Retention Credit.

4. Potential Wages

This includes FICA-taxable wages paid by the employer. This does not include wages used for FFCRA or Employee Retention Credit. Any transportation benefits or dependent care assistance paid above the FICA exempt limit are also not included.

These are wages that may be eligible for Employee Retention Credit. If you paid transportation benefits or dependent care above the FICA exempt limit, you can add those amounts in. Work with your financial advisor to determine eligible wages.

If you entered Employee Retention Credit as a lump sum in payroll, or the employee has met or exceeded the limit, the Potential Wages might not reflect actual amounts that can be used. Potential Wages don't account for the limit, and you'll need to consider wages across the entire period.
